

3-30-1893

The Bulloch County Banner

Notes

Condition varies. Some pages missing or in poor condition.

Originals provided for filming by the publisher.

Gift of Statesboro Herald and the Bulloch County Historical Society.

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.georgiasouthern.edu/bulloch-news-issues>

Recommended Citation

"The Bulloch County Banner" (1893). Bulloch County Newspapers (Single Issues). 1669.
<https://digitalcommons.georgiasouthern.edu/bulloch-news-issues/1669>

This newspaper is brought to you for free and open access by the Bulloch County Historical Newspapers at Digital Commons@Georgia Southern. It has been accepted for inclusion in Bulloch County Newspapers (Single Issues) by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons@Georgia Southern. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@georgiasouthern.edu.

PRICE. W.
 Air of shoes
 CLOTHING #1 to be sold by mail. The time to buy is now.
 O. GA.
 H ARS.
 L

PEOPLES' PARTY COLUMN.

Current Comment Concerning the Great Crusade Against Oppression.

A slight increase of the net debt of the United States was the result of the operations of the treasury department in February, as shown by the statement issued. The exact amount was $615,000,000.

The republican administration is succeeded by a democratic one, but there is not now, nor will there be any change in policy by which the people would realize the transfer of power were they not aware of the change that has taken place.

Census Bulletin, No. 852, giving statistics as to activity, poverty, and criminals in the United States has been received and shows that 43.19 per cent of the criminals (white) are chargeable to the native white element, and 56.81 per cent to the foreign element. Also that 41.56 per cent of the white men and women in the almshouses are native element and 58.44 per cent is of the foreign element.

The Industrial Council, composed of the various labor organizations, proposes to establish a labor exchange in Kansas City. The plan provides for members in every position in life, who shall exchange their products with each other. The farmer will bring a load of turnips to town and dump them in the cellar of the labor exchange store. For them he will receive "units of value," in checks issued by the labor exchange. With these he can buy dry goods or groceries at store, or he can go to the exchange lumber yard and buy lumber with these checks on his farm. He can also take these checks and go to the family of the left for their home, or to the schools, their prayers might be answered, in the future, happy and good, bride and groom.

The $1,000 Challenge Acute Victim to the Davis Sowing Experiment, Co., or Daniels, Sons & Co. by Mr. their agent, Gentlemen, Georgia. If your advertisement of job him (which, by the way, is a brutal, Weaver, here, per, his, meeting, These, nit, fol, ated, rols, throwing, and dis, speech, Yen, are, the, with, de, of, the, to, some, quiant, that the conference com, e of the American B. metallic League, and the Reform Press Association at Concordia hall in Washington a few days ago agreed to unite upon the single issue of free coinage in the next campaign. This report is absolutely without shadow of foundation. The committee of the National Reform Press Association agreed to no such thing, nor was it asked to do so. Our association will continue to favor free coinage because it is right, but they will also continue to push to the front the other economic questions which form the basis of the People's party, and these will probably be broadened in future campaigns. There need be no alarm concerning the adoption of the single issue of free silver as the future platform of the party. We do not understand that any attempt has been or will be made in this direction. Advocate (Topeka, Kan.)

It takes a man of steady nerve and strong personality to rise above the manorship which characterized visitors to the inauguration, and speak as did Gov. R. B. Timmon of South Carolina. "I do not like to voice any sentiment that may be in the least suggestive of Democratic disaster. Our party is now in possession, for the first time in many years, of all the departments of the Government, and, of course, the country is looking to a Democratic administration, for relief and reform. We need financial relief quite as much as a reform of taxation. I am squarely in favor of honest money, but it seems strange that, after using silver from the foundation of the government as a money metal, that in this latter day it is to be degraded and made a secondary importance. The gist of the whole matter is that if the Democratic party does not lighten the popular burden, it does not harbor to the cry for relief that comes up from every quarter, there is sure to be trouble. Then we look for a general shaking up and new political alignments. In this event, I look to see a combination of the south and west, for a people with a common interest must stand shoulder to shoulder."

OPINIONS BEING EXPRESSED.

It takes a man of steady nerve and strong personality to rise above the manorship which characterized visitors to the inauguration, and speak as did Gov. R. B. Timmon of South Carolina. "I do not like to voice any sentiment that may be in the least suggestive of Democratic disaster. Our party is now in possession, for the first time in many years, of all the departments of the Government, and, of course, the country is looking to a Democratic administration, for relief and reform. We need financial relief quite as much as a reform of taxation. I am squarely in favor of honest money, but it seems strange that, after using silver from the foundation of the government as a money metal, that in this latter day it is to be degraded and made a secondary importance. The gist of the whole matter is that if the Democratic party does not lighten the popular burden, it does not harbor to the cry for relief that comes up from every quarter, there is sure to be trouble. Then we look for a general shaking up and new political alignments. In this event, I look to see a combination of the south and west, for a people with a common interest must stand shoulder to shoulder."

A NATION OF TOADIES.

The Washington Post gives expression to some very sensible views in the following: "The torrent of slobber now flowing through the columns of the newspapers is rank enough to gag a grave digger. Never in the history of the country has there been anything to approach it, even distantly. In times gone by we have had enthusiasm. That sense of favor to get moved men to the extent of gush occasionally. The incoming President and Vice-President have always been big men about the 4th of March—properly enough. But this year the records of the past have been obliterated by a flow of hog-wash so thick, so stupid, so unbecoming that sensible men must feel like taking up the newspaper with a pair of tongs, and holding their noses while they open it."

Just what is coming over the American people we are blind from trying to imagine. Here are two gentlemen who, we have known favorably for some years past, that they are men of strength, ability and high character goes without saying. Had they been less than that, their party would not have nominated them, and the people would not have elected them. We are all sure that they will discharge their duties adequately, and

ALLIANCE LITERATURE.

Matters of Moment Which Concern the Order and Its Members.

A correspondent of the Thomsville News says: "The alliance is dying, it is well, perhaps it is, but we have not seen anything of the corpse in this section. On the contrary new life has been our experience since the election."

Co-operation is the farmer's greatest safeguard. You must stand together, especially in buying and selling. No matter where you live or what you raise, your fellow farmer in Massachusetts has the same interest in common that you have if you live in Georgia.

Skillful packing and marketing is one of the secrets of success in getting good prices for farm products. Apples, potatoes, peaches or anything of that kind must be "picked" in order to command good prices. A few faulty ones among the good ones spoil the sales.

From time immemorial the railroads of the country have tried to avoid paying tax. Several of the South are now in the hands of the sheriffs, so to speak. Are they not able to pay tax? If not they are no worse off than thousands of other people whose property is advertised for sale for taxes.

During the last session of congress $37,000 was appropriated with which to pay employees of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and to meet incidental expenses during the present fiscal year. It has been discovered that the employees listed signed by the president only carried the sum of $37. The clerical error cannot be rectified until congress again convenes.

HISTORY OF A TRUST.

In 1887 a number of men, mostly Bostonians, entered into a trust to control the iron business in the South. They operate in every State except North Carolina. When they began operations they were not quite so rich as they are now. The paid up capital only amounted to $125,000. Today it is said their net worth goes for two or three millions. They are worth in the aggregate $3,000,000. In other words they have made nearly thirty times as much clear profit as they put into the business five years ago. Yet the people they have robbed are not all opposed to such business. If you say anything against a trust some of these people will call you a "calamity howler," "communist" or "socialist."

THE TRUSTS WE PAY TO ISOLAND.

It does seem strange to me that the American people should be in debt to English money lenders to the amount of $500,000,000 government bonds, $5,100,000,000 railroad bonds and $4,000,000,000 municipal bonds, making a grand total of $9,600,000,000. The interest at low rate as 4 per cent amounts to $384,000,000 annually. This means an average interest drain of over five dollars on each man, woman and child. The largest part of it all is that little over 100 years ago the people of the thirteen colonies fought and bled, and some of them died to establish the right to make money for America without any dictation from the English government. They fought to sever the connection between England and America so far as government is concerned.

Again we have the humiliating spectacle of the President of the United States appointing five persons to go over across the "pond" and ascertain whether England and other nations will allow us to take our silver products from our mines and coin it into American money to enable the American people to pay their debts. If England and other nations say we cannot, then the American people must go to the bank and borrow money from English money lenders in gold only. How long, think you, will it take for those fellows to get possession of all the gold in the world?—J. G. Vallette, in Cotton Plant.

THE CHANCE HAS COME.

For the first time in nearly forty years the democracy finds itself in full possession of the government, and with a carte blanche from the people to do what ever it thinks best for the good of the people, says the Anderson, S. C., Advocate. For long years the cry has been, and truthfully so, that the democracy has not "had a chance." The people have been constantly told that relief would come if they would only give the democracy a chance, and now the people have taken them at their word, and have given them "a chance." And what a splendid chance it is. It means a chance to give the overburdened people relief from the grievous burdens that have been fastened about their necks by a party drunk with the lust of power. It means a chance to reform our vicious financial system. It means a chance to protect the weak, the helpless, the oppressed. It means a chance to legislate in the interest of the many against the few. It means a chance to check the enormous aggregation of wealth in the hands of a few, while the toiling millions go unrequited. All this it means and a great deal more. Will they improve the chance? We confess that in the light of past history we have many misgivings as to the result. If they are wise enough to see the opportunity and to secure it, then long years of power await them and the country will have Democratic administrations for years to come. The people have become weary of the reckless abuse of power, and the reckless expenditures of public money by the party that has so long been in control of the nation's affairs. But if they are content to pay to the needs of the hour and fail to heed the popular demand, then we will not have another Democratic administration, and some other party, born of the necessities and exigencies of the case, will arise and sweep away those who are faithless to the trust committed to them. We shall see what we shall see. The hour has struck and the "chance has come." We sincerely hope those in power will be wise enough to meet it aright.

A Camel Ride.

There is something inexplicably repelling in the supercilious triest of a camel as he looks scornfully at you with his nose in the air. But I overcame my repugnance and mounted one, after receiving careful instructions how to retain my seat while the brute was getting up. It was well enough when he walked, but when he began to trot at a brisk pace I devoutly wished myself a lumber animal. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the effect merely of making my camel trot to the left. I had been told that if I wished him to go to the right I must hit him on the left side of his head with a very short stick with which I had been provided for the purpose. But how was I to stop him? There was no bridle, only a rope attached to the left side of the brute's mouth. At that rope I tugged, with the